

STRIKERS BATTLE WITH BALL BATS

Drivers Knock Loyal Workmen Unconscious and Attack Policeman from Roof Tops.

Mounted Patrolman George Miller was detailed this morning to escort four employees of Burger and Klein, furniture dealers of Nos. 118 and 118 Essex Street to the company's garage at Avenue B and 8th Street, because of threats made by striking drivers of the company against loyal workers.

As the party passed the garage four men armed with baseball bats jumped out from a door way and attacked the policeman and the employees. Frank J. Yekel was knocked unconscious and his nose flattened.

Miller charged one assailant and forced him to surrender under threats to shoot. The captured man gave his name as I. Goldstein of No. 361 Livonia Avenue, East New York.

The other strikers showered bricks and bottles from the tops of tenements on the policeman. Police reserves were summoned, but the strikers escaped. Goldstein was arraigned in court charged with felonious assault. Yekel was taken to Bellevue Hospital.
